EMC^2 DELL

DELL EMC collaborates with colleges and universities worldwide to help prepare students for successful careers in a transforming IT industry. The DELLEMC External Research & Academic Alliance program offers unique 'open' curriculum-based education on technology topic such as cloud computing, big data analytics, information storage and management, and backup recovery systems and architecture. All courseware and faculty training are offered at no cost to qualifying higher education institutions. The courses focus on technology concepts and principles applicable to any vendor environment, enabling students to develop highly marketable knowledge and skills required in today's evolving IT industry.