With the success achieved in the initial years in absorbing the technology and in attaining production competence far ahead of the original plans, the Company launched a bold plan of diversification and expansion which resulted in the duplication of the Bangalore Unit and the setting up of new units at Pinjore, Kalamassery and Hyderabad. In 1967, recession struck the Indian Engineering Industry and the consumption of machine tools dipped drastically. With these strengths at full play, the Company emerged from the recession - with the world's widest range of machine tools and associated services under a single corporate entity. With action plans firmly launched for diversification into Presses and Press Brakes, Printing Machines, Die Casting and Plastic Injection Moulding Machines, that were considered to have economic cycles that are different from those of machine tools, with export markets of enormous potential under active development.

When HMT was founded in 1953, it dedicated itself to a clear objective: empowering the emergence of Indian Industry. With the virtue of being founded on a strong technical base, HMT donned the role of a one-of-its kind precision engineering company. HMT leveraged its technical know-how, acquired from world leaders in machine tools, to arm a wide spectrum of industries with vital manufacturing machinery and solutions. Strongly supported by excellent R&D prowess, a highly-skilled workforce and as many as nine exclusive machine tool units across the country, HMT contributed enormously to the precision engineering arena.

HMT Machine Tools' expertise in machine tools has been honed to a point that it can design and develop any kind of machine. From simple lathes to multi-station transfer lines, from stand-alone CNC machines to flexible manufacturing systems, leading to factory automation, HMT Machine Tools' Products cover general purpose machines, special purpose machines and CNC machines to meet the application needs of every engineering industry. 100,000 machine tools on par with international standards in quality and performance, manufacture by HMT, are in use all over India. The Company also manufactures sheet fed offset printing machines in single, two, four, and five colours, programmable paper guillotines, ball screws, and CNC Control Systems.

HMT's pioneering spirit and cutting-edge marketing abilities enable it to showcase its products and services to a worldwide clientele. The establishment of HMT (International) Limited leveraged the Company's international trading experience. HMT(I) markets the products through a global network that extends over 40 countries to service its customers worldwide. HMT(I) has a diverse clientele with more than 18,000 machines in over 70 countries including the developed ones.

we were very happy to see new technology of HMT Ltd., and we also questioned their representative about technical details. Company's representatives were very happy to provide this detail to us. We shown our keen interest to update our-self with upcoming technology.

Banasura Sagar Dam, which impounds the Karamanathodu tributary of the Kabini River, is part of the Indian Banasurasagar Project consisting of a dam and a canal project started in 1979. The goal of the project is to support the Kakkayam Hydro electric power project and satisfy the demand for irrigation and drinking water in a region known to have water shortages in seasonal dry periods.

In the dam's reservoir there is a set of islands that were formed when the reservoir submerged the surrounding areas. The islands with the Banasura hills are in the background view. It is the largest earth dam in India and the second largest of its kind in Asia. The dam is made up of massive stacks of stones and boulders.

Hydropower or water power is power derived from the energy of falling water or fast running water, which may be harnessed for useful purposes. Since ancient times, hydropower from many kinds of watermills has been used as a renewable energy source for irrigation and the operation of various mechanical devices, such as gristmills, sawmills, textile mills, trip hammers, dock cranes, domestic lifts, and ore mills. A trompe, which produces compressed air from falling water, is sometimes used to power other machinery at a distance.

Large-scale hydroelectric power stations are more commonly seen as the largest power producing facilities in the world, with some hydroelectric facilities capable of generating more than double the installed capacities of the current largest nuclear power stations. Although no official definition exists for the capacity range of large hydroelectric power stations, facilities from over a few hundred megawatts are generally considered large hydroelectric facilities.

Dams create reservoirs that allow for greater heights of fall and also serve to regulate energy withdrawal. Water is stored and used when electricity demand is the greatest. The water is directed from the reservoir to a lower level through tunnels, passing a turbine on the way. The type of turbine used depends on the size of the power plant, height of fall and other conditions. The Francis and Kaplan turbines are the most common types, used chiefly in hydro power plants with medium heights of fall. Hydro power plants with higher heights of fall (in the Alps and Norway, for example) normally use a Pelton turbine. A generator then converts the mechanical energy generated by the rotating turbine shaft into electrical energy, a transformer increases the voltage and the electricity is transmitted to the grid.

Feedback

We received insight of the whole plant right from the raw material (water) procurement, processing, generation & transmission of electricity. The whole process was explained in detail by their representative with detailed description about each equipment with their specifications.
